New Exhibits

A Period of Time: Patrick Luber 2005-2025

Forsberg Riverside Galleries

On view February 25–June 15, 2025

Patrick Luber's relief sculptures exercising a metaphoric language constructed from the detritus of popular culture, recycled materials, and obsessive production practices, is a sincere, quirky, and sometimes humorous vision about faith and culture ranging from the theological to the political and scientific within the American experiment. Luber taught sculpture at the University of North Dakota from 1990-2022 and now resides in West Des Moines.

Pumpkins, Pigs & Pirates: Tales of Arthur Geisert

Phelps Youth Pavilion Junior Art Gallery III

On view March 2–January 4, 2026

Pumpkins, Pigs & Pirates is an interactive new display inspired by award-winning children's book author and Iowa artist, Arthur Geisert! The exhibition features artwork on loan from the Dubuque Museum of Art, along with creative hands-on experiences for families of all ages.

Soul of Distinction

Watkins Grand Foyer and Creative Connect Corridor

On view March 25–September 7, 2025

Collaborative Collage & Reception
Friday, May 9, 5:30–7:30PM

Ethan Edvenson is a mixed media artist from Des Moines who specializes in gestural marks, storytelling, and layered compositions. A 2020 B.F.A. graduate of the University of Northern Iowa, the artist says his work “challenges the viewers to confront the impact of the world around them by embracing intentionality, self-improvement, and personal choices.” Edvenson is a recent recipient of an Artist Career Accelerator Grant from the Iowa Arts Council and National Endowments for the Arts.

Michael Broshar

Longfellow-Hurlbut Concourse Gallery

On view April 15–August 17, 2025

Watercolor Demonstration & Reception

Friday, May 9, 5:30–7:30pm

Painter, WCA instructor and former architect Michael Broshar presents over a decade of artworks from his studio and plein air practice. This self-titled exhibition features paintings in watercolor, gouache, and oil.

To Dream the Land: Watercolors from the Collection

West Gallery

On view April 15–August 17, 2025

Featuring abstract watercolor landscapes by Iowa artists Clayton Fowler, Shirley Eliason Haupt, Cheryl Jacoby, Richard Leet and Jo Myers-Walker, as well as some luminous nocturnal compositions by New York artist Louis Pontone. This exhibition insists that the landscape is more than can be seen and that the artist is perhaps more a conjurer than an interpreter. Ultimately, these remarkable watercolors are transcendent depictions of, and charged references to, the land, the water, the sky, and the heavens.

Ethan Edvenson, Everything Is Here in the Kingdom, mixed media on paper, 2023.

Holiday Arts Festival Acquisitions

Langlas Loft Galleries

On view May 15–December 6, 2025

The Waterloo Center for the Arts has been collecting art from the juried vendors of the Holiday Arts Festival for some time now, but in earnest for more than a decade. Artists and artisans from across the region help strengthen the range and scope of WCA's Midwestern Art collection.

Fleuve-Revolution of Freedom & Flow

Law-Reddington Galleries

On view May 16–September 14, 2025

Presented in partnership with the Grinnell College Museum of Art, featuring guest curator Dr. Petrouchka Moise, an exhibition of Jacob Lawrence's The Life of Touissant Louverture, a series of 15 screenprints dedicated to the life of the leader of the Haitian Revolution. These stunning and rarely shown works of art are paired with objects from the WCA Haitian art collection. Fleuve will consider the history and legacy of the Haitian Revolution as a framework to showcase the revolutions sparked by the differing styles, aesthetics, and art movements flowing from and through Haitian Artists.

Echoes of Kathmandu Valley

Forsberg-Riverside Galleries

On view July 1–November 2, 2025

Gallery Talk, Demonstration & Reception Thursday, July 10, 5:30–7:30pm

UNI Assistant Professor Riva Nayaju is an architect and graphic designer specializing in typography, motion graphics, and print design. This exhibition represents her expressive work in watercolor and ink showcasing the temples, houses and streets of her home country Nepal. A daily painting challenge since the summer of 2024, each painting is a narrative, "a silent conversation with the past, reflecting Kathmandu's timeless charm and spiritual essence."

Jacob Lawrence, The Capture, screenprint, 1987
Courtesy of the Grinnell College Museum of Art.

Nepalese Masks and Figures from the Kohler Foundation

Forsberg-Riverside Galleries

On view July 1–November 2, 2025

A collection exhibition to accompany Riva Nayaju's, Echoes of Kathmandu Valley. These striking, fragile masks and figures from Nepal reflect the complex culture and history of that country. The objects were a bequest to the Waterloo Center for the Arts in 2019 by the Kohler Foundation whose many initiatives include the preservation of art by self-taught artists.

Outreach

Light Within Ourselves: Haitian Art in Iowa

Des Moines Art Center, Des Moines, IA

April 18–September 7, 2025

MEET THE INSTRUCTORS

MyQuawn Bailey

Drums

Originally from Waterloo, MyQuawn has a passion for fostering drum culture and sharing it's benefits across the state. Founder and Event Organizer for Drum Iowa, MyQuawn is all about bringing communities together through drum. Come join Myquawn and Drum Iowa and share some good vibes and positivity.

Rhonda Scott

Book Binding

Rhonda Scott is a self-taught artist from Ames, Iowa who works in multiple media. She is especially fascinated by age-old processes with a modern twist, such as lampwork and paper marbling. Rhonda is passionate about the value of creativity and lifelong learning—and she enjoys helping others find their own creative spark. When Rhonda isn't making something, she's often on her favorite trails, cycling through fields and woods.

Ellen Hermanson

Macrame

Ellen is the owner of Timeless Ties and Butterflies, a small craft business she runs with her daughter Megan and her sister Kris Kunkel. She loves all things butterfly and works hard educating people on the conservation of Monarch butterflies. Ellen has been doing macrame for over a year and has learned just about everything she knows from Youtube and a lot of practice. Her goal in anything that she does is to inspire others to find their creativity.
